

As someone who is a member of MC Federal Credit Union, I can confidently say that the value of membership goes beyond just having a place to store your money. Unlike the traditional banks, credit unions are member-owned and operated. This means that the primary focus of MC Federal Credit Union is on serving the needs of their members rather than simply making a profit for shareholders like some banks unfortunately do. At MC Federal Credit Union, one of the benefits that I have experienced firsthand is the personalized service and attention that I have received when interacting with them. I have received individualized attention with them and my financial needs were met in a way that worked for me rather than having to conform with their needs. Hand in hand with this, I have found that MC Federal Credit Union has offered me lower fees and better interest rates than other banks I have looked at simply because they do not focus on the interest of the shareholders and investors more than their members. Lastly, MC Federal is very involved in the community of its members and offers many opportunities for me as a student. Through scholarship opportunities like this one, to hosting charitable events such as golf tournaments, MC Federal Credit Union is always looking for ways to give back to its members while also providing them with opportunities to succeed no matter what stage of life people are in. Overall, a membership at MC Federal Credit Union is a very valuable asset to anyone who values personalized services, lower fees, increased interest rates, and opportunities to succeed.
